FOREWORD

A respect for tradition, a belief in progressiveness, and a desire for truth have been our guides in the creation of this volume.

Trusting that it reflects spirit, strength, and youthfulness of our school life, the editors present the 1949 INDIAN LEGEND as a record of this year at Falmouth High School.

DEDICATION

MRS. BESS HOSKINS

Because they represent the true spirit of tolerance, growth, and intelligence,

Because they are living examples of the spirit of Falmouth High School, we, the staff of the 1949 Indian Legend, feeling that we express the desires of the student body, are honored to dedicate this Volume to:

SPORTS

A Most Successful Grid Season

Falmouth High Indians had a most successful grid season this year. Broken field running was led by Judson Fulford and Withers Moncure, while line bucking was paced by Sterling Hall. Although it takes eleven men to play a game without Charles Moore, a blocking back, our plays would not have been very successful. The line led by George Ramer and Thomas Brown, was always plugging, through victory and defeat. The left side of the line was lead by Brown, Ramer, and Damron, while Resio held the center. On the right side was Freeman, Limerick, and Meade. Our capable and well assisting reserves were: in the backfield, Perkins, Hooe, Brooks, Shacklette, Way and DeBruyn; on the line, Hamm, Dye, Monroe, Cooper, Grinnan, Latham, Sullivan, H. Burton, C. Burton, Jubb, Limerick, Prince, Schooler, and Watts.

Head Coach Stuart Hoskins and Assistant
Coach Fitzhugh Heflin.

INDIANETTES

Of the fifteen members of the girls' 1948-49 basketball team, there are six who will be in the June graduating class. They are Anna Fleming, Alice Verburg, Joyce Cropp, Jackie Dobson, Agatha Gracik, and Frances Harding. These players will be greatly missed.

Six freshmen were accepted in the varsity squad. They are Shirley Hedrick, Yvonne English, Jewel Patton, Helen Verburg, Barbara Timmons, and Ella Allen. Charlotte Rankin, a sophomore, was a newcomer in the guarding lineup. May the spirit of good sportsmanship and fair play that has been ever present in this year's team prevail in Falmouth's varsity squads that are to be.
